Combating late payment in commercial transactions

European Parliament legislative resolution of 23 April 2024 on the proposal for a regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council on combating late payment in commercial transactions (COM(2023)0533 – C9-0338/2023 – 2023/0323(COD))

(Ordinary legislative procedure: first reading)

The European Parliament,

- having regard to the Commission proposal to Parliament and the Council (COM(2023)0533),
 - having regard to Article 294(2) and Article 114 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, pursuant to which the Commission submitted the proposal to Parliament (C9-0338/2023),
 - having regard to Article 294(3) of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union,
 - having regard to the opinion of the European Economic and Social Committee of 17 January 2024¹,
 - having regard to the opinion of the Committee of the Regions of 31 January 2024²,
 - having regard to Rule 59 of its Rules of Procedure,
 - having regard to the report of the Committee on the Internal Market and Consumer Protection (A9-0156/2024),
1. Adopts its position at first reading hereinafter set out;
 2. Calls on the Commission to refer the matter to Parliament again if it replaces, substantially amends or intends to substantially amend its proposal;
 3. Instructs its President to forward its position to the Council, the Commission and the national parliaments.

(3) Late payments directly affect liquidity and predictability of cash flows, thus increasing working capital needs and compromising a company's access to external financing. This affects competitiveness, reduces productivity, leads to redundancies, increases the likelihood of insolvencies and bankruptcies and is a critical barrier for growth. The damaging effects of late payments spread along supply chains, as the payment delay is often passed onto suppliers. Small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs), who rely on regular and predictable streams of cash, are heavily affected by those negative consequences. Late payment thus represents a problem for the Union economy because of its negative economic and social consequences.

Amendment

(3) Late payments and payments deferred beyond the periods established by law directly affect liquidity and predictability of cash flows, thus increasing working capital needs and compromising profitability, when the creditor needs to obtain external financing because of late payment. This affects competitiveness, reduces, leads to redundancies, increases the likelihood of insolvencies and bankruptcies and is a critical barrier for growth, also considering that inflation reduces the real value of credits over time. The damaging effects of late payments spread along supply chains, as the payment delay is often passed onto suppliers. Small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs), and in particular micro-enterprises, which rely on regular and predictable streams of cash, are heavily affected by those negative consequences. Late payment thus represents a problem for the Union economy because of its negative economic and social consequences. The risk of such negative effects strongly increases in periods of economic downturn when access to financing is more difficult.

(6) Directive 2011/7/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council⁴⁰ lays down rules to combat late payment in commercial transactions. In 2019, the European Parliament identified several shortcomings of that Directive. The SME Strategy for a sustainable and digital Europe⁴¹ called for ensuring a ‘late-payment-free’ environment for SMEs and strengthening the enforcement of Directive 2011/7/EU. In 2021, the Fit for Future Platform highlighted critical issues in the implementation of that Directive in its opinion. The main shortcomings identified in these initiatives are related to: the ambiguous provisions on ‘grossly unfair’ regarding the deadlines for payment in business to business transactions (B2B), the unfair payment practices and the deadlines for the procedures of acceptance and verification; the flat fee compensation; the asymmetry of rules for payments terms between G2B and B2B transactions; the lack of a maximum payment term for commercial transactions in B2B transactions; the lack of monitoring of compliance and enforcement; the absence of tools to combat the asymmetries of information; as well as tools for creditors to take action against their debtors, and the lack of synergies with the public procurement framework.

(11) Late payment constitutes a breach of contract which is financially attractive to debtors, due to low or no interest rates charged on late payment, or slow procedures for redress. A decisive shift to a culture of prompt payment, including one in which the exclusion of the right to charge interest for late payment is null and void, is necessary to reverse this trend and to discourage late payment. Consequently, contractual payment periods should be limited to 30 calendar days both in B2B transactions and G2B transactions, where the public authority is the debtor.

A decisive shift to a culture of prompt payment, including one in which the exclusion of the right to charge interest for late payment is null and void, is necessary to reverse this trend and to discourage late payment. Consequently, contractual payment periods should be limited to 30 calendar days both in B2B transactions and G2B transactions, where the public authority is the debtor. This shift is also needed to limit the so-called ‘fear factor’ that micro and small undertakings suffer when they have a credit with bigger companies and that often brings such creditors to accept longer payment periods than they are comfortable with against the promise of future business. At the same time, additional flexibility should be granted to the undertakings so they can benefit from the freedom of contract and negotiate a longer payment period up to 60 calendar days. This extended payment period should be possible when it is mutually beneficial for the creditor and the debtor. Electronic invoicing can also be a helpful tool in shortening the payment period, as it would help creditors to prove the date of receipt of the invoice in the event of doubt or dispute.

Amendment

(11a) Against this background, it is necessary to acknowledge the existence of certain business models and industry practices within the retail sector which aim to keep slightly longer payment periods. As these practices reflect low rotation and seasonality of certain product categories, as well as unique operating cycles of some slow-moving cultural goods, such as toys, jewellery, sporting equipment or books, and are mutually beneficial for the creditors and the debtors, it is desirable to allow a limited flexibility in this matter so that the contracting parties can benefit of up to 120 calendar days payment period.

Amendment

(18a) This Regulation upholds contractual freedom and the implementation of Article 16 of the Charter of Fundamental rights concerning the freedom to conduct a business. For this purpose, this Regulation leaves to the contracting parties the choice of contractual relations, as well as the type of contract and its modalities. Choice of different types of contracts, including consignment contracts, where the invoice is issued at an agreed point of time after the delivery of goods, is not restricted in any way. In the case of consignment contracts or other similar types of contract the deadlines specified in this Regulation should be applicable after receipt of the invoice. As this Regulation emphasises on the payment period after issuing the invoice, thus contributing to the improvement of the payment culture overall, and merely ensures that agreements on the payment period do not abuse the freedom of contract to the disadvantage of the creditor, it should be possible for the parties to benefit from the freedom of contract and consent to their preferred type of agreement;

(21) Abuse of freedom of contract to the disadvantage of the creditor should be avoided. As a result, where a clause in a contract or a practice relating to the date or term of payment, the payment or rate of interest for late payment, the compensation for recovery costs, extending the duration the procedure of verification or acceptance or intentionally delaying or preventing the moment of sending the invoice is not in conformity with this Regulation, it should be null and void.

Amendment

(21) Abuse of freedom of contract to the disadvantage of the creditor should be avoided. As a result, where a clause in a contract or a practice relating to the date or term of payment, the payment or rate of interest for late payment, the compensation for recovery costs, extending the duration the procedure of verification or acceptance or preventing the moment of sending the invoice is not in conformity with this Regulation, it should be null and void and in any case prohibited. In the same vein, certain practices leading to an abuse of freedom of contract that is to the disadvantage of the creditor should also be prohibited. The debtor should not be able to prevent or restrict assignments of credits to third parties, or the use by the creditor of an executive order issued by a court.

Amendment

(27) To ensure easy and accessible means of redress, Member States should promote the voluntary use of effective and independent alternative dispute resolution mechanism to solve payment disputes in commercial transactions. Member States could designate their respective chambers of commerce and industry as bodies responsible for alternative dispute resolution, provided that they can demonstrate impartiality and independence from the parties. As parties may engage in negotiations to reach an amicable settlement regarding disputed debts, such settlements may involve the adjustment of interest and compensation claims, provided they are in compliance with principles of fairness and do not unduly disadvantage the creditor.

Amendment

(27a) In view of the need to enhance transparency and accountability in commercial transactions, and in line with the objectives of promoting responsible financial management and fair business practices, it is imperative to introduce specific reporting obligations for contracting authorities as described in Article 2(1) of Directive 2014/24/EU. Contracting authorities should report annually on their payment practices, providing detailed insights into the promptness of their payments. A structured approach to reporting is necessary to foster greater transparency in payment practices and to assist in identifying areas where improvements are needed. The reporting obligation should include the disclosure of amounts, in euros, paid within various time frames after the payment deadline set out in this Regulation. The detailed reporting should include categorising payments made in intervals of 1 to 30 days, 31 to 60 days, 61 to 90 days, and beyond 90 days after the stipulated payment deadline, and the average time taken to pay an invoice should be part of the report. To ensure that the information is not only used for regulatory compliance but also serves as a tool for public scrutiny and encourages best practices in payment disciplines, the reports should be made publicly accessible and should be submitted in an electronic format to the relevant Member State enforcement authority.

(29a) Recognising the critical impact of late payment practices on the European Union's economic environment and in order to enhance transparency, compliance, and best practices, the Commission should establish the European Observatory of Late Payments ('the Observatory'). The Observatory should be a key element in monitoring, analyzing, and sharing insights on payment behaviors across the Union with a primary function to monitor both timely and delayed payment practices, gathering and disseminating expertise, identifying best and potentially harmful practices, and evaluating the effectiveness of enforcement authorities in their regulatory roles. The Observatory's focus should be on providing the Commission with ongoing advice and expertise crucial for understanding and shaping the evolution of payment and late payment practices within the Union. To facilitate comprehensive monitoring and effective functioning, Member States should communicate essential information to the Observatory, including lists of goods and services subject to specific payment procedures, aggregated data from relevant articles, and details regarding enforcement actions and outcomes. The Observatory, chaired by the Commission and composed of a balanced representation of experts and stakeholders, should issue annual reports, opinions, and contributions pertinent to implementing and enforcing this Regulation. The outputs should reflect the state of payment practices and offer guidelines and recommendations for enhancing the effectiveness and fairness of the regulatory framework governing late payments.

Amendment 22

Proposal for a regulation Recital 29 b (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(29b) To assess and ensure the effectiveness of this Regulation, the Commission should comprehensively evaluate its implementation and impact through a comprehensive report. Given the dynamic nature of commercial transactions and the evolving market conditions, the report should be a crucial tool in understanding the Regulation's effectiveness and identifying areas for improvement. The Commission, based on the findings of the report, should be prepared to accompany it with a legislative proposal if considered to be necessary and appropriate, ensuring that the Regulation remains relevant, effective, and aligned to promote fair and efficient payment practices within the Union. Therefore, four years after the entry of this Regulation into force, and subsequently every three years, the Commission should submit a report to the European Parliament and the Council, which will maintain transparency, evaluate the progress, and make necessary adjustments to the Regulation. The report should examine the impact of the scope of this Regulation, focusing on its effects across specific sectors and business models, and provide insights into how the Regulation influences diverse commercial landscapes. The report should evaluate the impact of measures implemented, especially those related to payment periods, on enhancing cash flow and liquidity in the market to shed light on the practical effectiveness of these measures in improving financial dynamics. The report should also assess the effectiveness of the enforcement authorities in ensuring compliance and addressing payment issues. An additional aspect of the report should explore the potential benefits of introducing Union-wide e-invoicing and its role in shortening payment periods. To facilitate this comprehensive evaluation, Member States should provide the necessary information to the Commission, including details of enforcement actions and outcomes. The report should also include an assessment of the overall impact of this Regulation on commercial transactions and the effectiveness of the European Observatory of Late Payments in monitoring payment practices within the Union.

Amendment 24

Proposal for a regulation Recital 31

Text proposed by the Commission

(31) The objectives of this Regulation are

Amendment

(31) The objectives of this Regulation are to combat late payment in commercial transactions, in order to ensure the proper functioning of the internal market, thereby fostering the competitiveness of undertakings and in particular of SMEs. Those objectives cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States, as implementing national solutions would likely result in a lack of uniform rules, fragmentation of the single market and higher costs for companies trading across borders. Therefore, those objectives can be better achieved at Union level. The Union may therefore adopt measures, in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity as set out in Article 5 of the Treaty of European Union. In accordance with the principle of proportionality as set out in that Article, this Regulation does not go beyond what is necessary to achieve those objectives.

Amendment 25

Proposal for a regulation Recital 32

Text proposed by the Commission

(32) To provide sufficient time for all relevant actors to put in place the arrangements needed to comply with this Regulation, its application should be deferred. However, to ensure better protection of the creditors, commercial transactions that are to be paid after the date of entry into force of this Regulation, shall be subject to its provisions, even if the relevant contract was signed before its date of application.

Amendment 26

to combat late payment in commercial transactions, in order to ensure the proper functioning of the internal market, thereby fostering the competitiveness of undertakings and in particular of micro-enterprises and SMEs. Those objectives cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States, as implementing national solutions would likely result in a lack of uniform rules, fragmentation of the single market and higher costs for companies trading across borders. Therefore, those objectives can be better achieved at Union level. The Union may therefore adopt measures, in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity as set out in Article 5 of the Treaty on European Union. In accordance with the principle of proportionality as set out in that Article, this Regulation does not go beyond what is necessary to achieve those objectives.

Amendment

(32) To provide sufficient time for all relevant actors to put in place the arrangements needed to comply with this Regulation, its application should be deferred. However, to ensure better protection of the creditors, commercial transactions that are to be paid after the date of entry into force of this Regulation, shall be subject to its provisions, even if the relevant contract was signed before its date of application. In the case of micro-undertakings which encounter the biggest challenges in terms of cash flow, the application of this Regulation in situations where they are debtors should be deferred for a further 12 months.
